Tokyo, September 9, 2016 ---Hitachi Automotive Systems Espelkamp GmbH, a member of the Hitachi Automotive Systems Group that is responsible for the company's automotive repair and aftermarket parts business in Europe, today announced that the company will be participating in Automechanika Frankfurt 2016, to be held at the Messe Frankfurt in Frankfurt, Germany, from Tuesday, September 13th, to Saturday, September 17th. The Hitachi Automotive Systems Group will be introducing a wide range of aftermarket products and technologies at the event. This will mark Hitachi Automotive Systems Espelkamp's 19th participation in the event, which is held every other year.

Europe is the birthplace of the automotive industry, and demand for cars remains strong in Central and Eastern Europe. Automotive aftermarket demand for replacement parts and repairs is also expected to grow. Hitachi Automotive Systems is utilizing the technological capabilities honed in its 90-year history in the automotive equipment business to strengthen its aftermarket products business. Further, it is using its wide range of aftermarket parts, which include engine parts such as airflow sensors and high-pressure fuel pumps, as well as safety system parts such as shock absorbers and brake pads to expand its global business.
